MARTINEZ/MONK GARDEN – 8802 Daytonia Avenue

This garden designed by landscape architect David Ralston was installed in concert with the final construction phase of this new modern style home. The home was designed by architect Charles Bobo and constructed by brothers Amir and Adam Hamghalam. The plants uniquely compliment the contemporary open design of the home and when larger and more mature the plants should combine to create a comfortable, private, inviting outdoor living space. The back yard is scattered with plants that thrive in the Texas climate. The fence line is camouflaged with Loquat and Crossvine. Multiple Desert Willows provide a back drop for the outdoor fire pit which is surrounded by Gulf Muhly grass and Plum Yew hinting of a more xeriscape design influence. Finally, the view from the interior of the home, through the generous glass doors to the backyard passes through strategically planted Contorted Filberts (Harry Lauder's Walking Sticks, Corkscrew Hazelnut). The unique "curvy" nature of this plant's woody stems, when larger and more mature, will undoubtedly create a distinctive filter through which to view the back yard from inside the home.

Sponsored by Metro Paws

THE CHANTILIS GARDEN – 8722 Daytonia

Wander from the unassuming, xeriscaped front yard, up the black tejas drive to peek in the greenhouse and see the raised vegetable and herb planters. Cross through the cheerful and artistic metal and glass fence into the backyard oasis. You will see perennials, xeriscape plantings, roses, orchids, and more raised container vegetables and herbs. The fence was created from old galvanized metal. A swell was made from rocks, minerals and glass to assist with drainage. There are several seating areas and a recessed area that was created from railroad ties. That area doubles as a fire pit gathering spot in the winter and houses a watering trough "pool" in the summer. Grace, the largest southern catalpa tree in Texas, towers over the property. Prayer flags, glow in the dark pebbles that adorn the crushed granite pathways, crystals, and slag glass create a magical feel in this unique oasis.

Sponsored by CAC Mosaic

MCKENZIE SLATON GARDEN – 8647 Diceman

Built in 1925, this charming cottage extends a warm welcome with a cozy front porch that beckons you to sit in a rocking chair and enjoy a lazy afternoon. Since purchasing this quintessential Little Forest Hills home ten years ago, owners Tracey and Robert have enjoyed transforming their outdoor space into a unique and welcoming environment, where they often entertain friends and family. Special pride is taken in having done it all themselves and their labor of love is a true reflection of their personalities and their fondness for all things whimsical. Their imaginative landscape features eight Japanese maples, over 100 different kinds of perennials, and local artwork that they have collected over the years. A detached covered patio area is yet another space to relax outdoors. Numerous potted plants abound, adding year round color and texture throughout the front, back, and side yards. No space has been ignored and visitors will certainly find enchantment everywhere they look.

THE COLLINS GARDEN – 1247 N. Selva

This shady lot with huge 60 year old pecans, live oaks, and numerous Japanese Maples, is divided into three unique yet classy yard areas with delightful touches all around. Mosaic paver stones are scattered throughout the garden areas. The front bed has a bubbling fountain beneath a large mosaic fish, and the work sheds in the back are ambitious works in progress. All three areas have shade beds and colorful container gardens. The cozy side yard gets the most sun. It has a seating area under a surface rust steel pergola surrounded by exotic succulents (Don't miss the Scottie dog topiary.) Stepping through the steel gate into the back, it is easy to see that this is an artist's yard. The backyard is a brand new garden with ground cover and hardscape foot paths artfully designed by Blue Ribbon Lady landscaping. It is a garden made to mesh seamlessly with the rustic modern architecture of the home. This backyard area features a variety of full shade plants under the canopy of ancient Pecans. Evo from Blue Ribbon Lady will be on hand to answer questions about the plantings. Don't miss this quirky gem.

THE TAYLOR GARDEN – 1510 Verano

Nestled under large oak trees and a lone American elm, lies a yard deep in shades of green. From the gully border into the leafy shades, you take the rope bridge into the heart of the front. One can take a path to the left or to the right to quiet sanctuary where our feathered youth roam, plotting to overthrow the spring colored flora. Feel the energy of eternal youth with play and production flowing within.

Sponsored by The McBride Boothe Group MD Rose Realty & Renovations

THE SMITH GARDEN – 1255 N. Selva

We moved into our home in Nov. 2017 after 23 years in Lake Highlands. We chose this home because of the neighborhood and the beautiful yard. We have had to make a few changes because of losing a tree during construction of an addition to our home. The previous shady backyard now gets more sun and we are moving and adding landscape. The eight Japanese Maples are some our favorites and are constantly adding beauty to the yard. The side yard provides space for a couple of raised beds for us to learn and experiment with...if we could just keep the squirrels out!
